Entrepreneurland Self Reflection: The Gift & It Takes A Village

"The Gift" and "It Takes a Village" illustrate that life is a balance of good and bad experiences. Betrayal and challenges teach valuable lessons and build character, while community and support provide the necessary encouragement and resources to thrive. Both aspects are essential, highlighting that the entrepreneurial journey is enriched by the interplay of overcoming adversity and embracing communal support.

Recall a time when you experienced betrayal in your personal or professional life.
How did it affect you emotionally and mentally?

In what ways did this experience help you become more discerning or resilient?

Reflect on a negative experience and consider how you can reframe it as an opportunity for growth.

Despite past betrayals, how have you worked to rebuild trust in others?
